

designs for living

good day.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit a sampling of our housing & lifestyle portfolio for you to review. Our body of work spans 29 years with projects across the nation in a wide array of housing models.

Our dedicated design professionals understand that one of our most basic human goals is a home connected to our future dreams and the lifestyle we wish to maintain. Some clients know precisely the vision of their perfect house, while others are seeking to define it.

Our role in architectural design is to help clients shape their vision and bring it to reality.

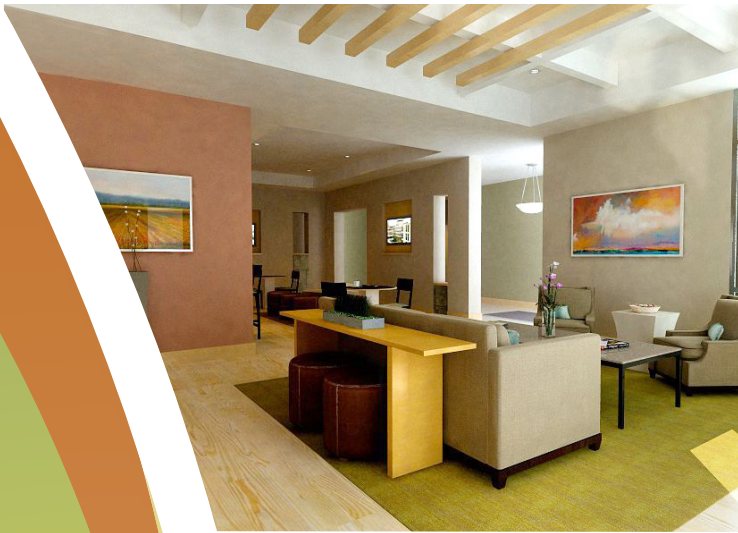

Through our insightful design process, we create custom homes that:

- Match form and function with your lifestyle and aesthetic preferences, making your new home a living environment as unique as you are.
- Address the growing demands of a modern lifestyle.
- Express innovations and authentic design solutions.
- Support sustainable neighborhoods that minimize environmental degradation.
- Express the character of the region, the site and the people who live in them.

Contemporary features with bold details and spacial gestures define this home for modern living.

Clean lines, sleek materials and crisp detailing evoke elegance through simplicity and restraint. Warm colors and soft textures offset stark geometry to create a unified vision for the whole space.

"The staff at WAI not only listens to what we are asking, but they hear what we say and then build upon that to accomplish a great end result."

"We are proud to be one of their many clients."

~ Thomas C. MacNally

socialized living

A townhouse development within a catalogue of tradition.

'Seaside details provide unique opportunities for personal identity and interpretation. Simple details are the transition from traditional and contemporary interiors expressive of individual owners.

"Due to the competence of the staff at WAI Continuum, our project has sailed along without a hitch. We could not have done it alone."

~ Doug Dewane

Current lifestyles demand amenities not often found in older homes. Updates can be achieved through innovative design and seamless integration of identifiable architectural qualities, such as proportion, scale, texture and color.

neighborhood context

New housing developments often evoke the 'track' or 'cookie cutter' label. Although modern amenities are usually provided, they are often not fully developed, lack substance and integration.

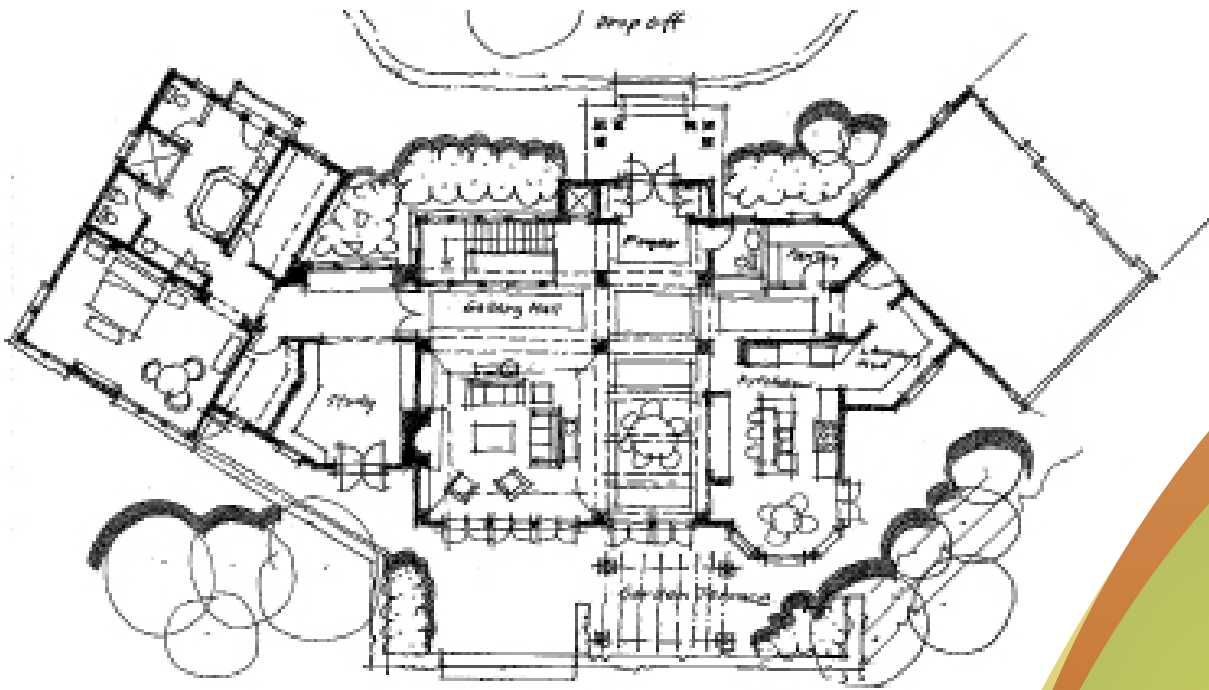

Neighborhoods are a collection of styles, with uniform scale and richness in subtle diversity. These designs are reflective of that mission.

ENTRANCE VIEW

This lakeside home is grounded on the lifestyle of suburban ideals, features of a favorite Florida retreat and the desire for the picturesque qualities found during travels in Europe.

The integration of modern amenities within the framework of arts and crafts tradition creates a unique statement for family living.

LAKESIDE VIEW

"We hear many, many enthusiastic comments from visitors and family members when they walk through our home."

~ Richard Erickson

personal design

private residence

This passive solar home is inspired by nature. Set with tree top views and woodland gardens, the site was significant to the design intent of the home. With a mixture of stone, stucco, brick, half-timber and copper, the home is a natural fit to the sloping site with broad expanses of windows and cathedral ceilings inviting in the outdoor views.

Large areas for entertainment and recreational equipment provide a fun experience for all to enjoy.

"Our project is clearly a success. This success is evident in many areas, each of which is attributed to the innovative design WAI Continuum created."

Visitors remark on the truly inviting and unique spaces that have been developed."

~ Chris Thro

experience.

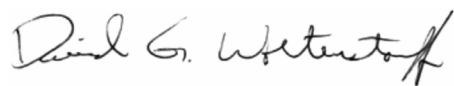

There is a competitive spirit that lives in the space where strategy meets execution and creativity meets functionality. It is this space where environments are born and lasting success defined.

Experience doesn't simply come from moving through one project to another. It comes from exploring ideas, navigating obstacles and creating solutions. Not only for the task at hand, but the long term goals you hold for your new home.

Whether you are looking to remodel your existing home or construct a new vision for your future, we invite you to speak with one of our design architects to explore how we may support you in this endeavor.

WAI Continuum's experience is as diverse as it is long - spanning 29 years, 32 states and hundreds of housing projects for all ages. While this booklet will give you a brief idea of this experience, to appreciate the full breadth of our experience, you will have to see us at work.

Give us a call at 651.224.0644 and put our experience to work for you.
